Buyers of Daher's 2020 edition of its workhorse Kodiak 100 will receive the first two years of scheduled maintenance complimentary, under a new incentive package announced this week.

In an effort to align the support coverage and customer experience for both its TBM and Kodiak turboprop lines, Daher Aircraft is offering a new incentive to buyers of its 2020 model year Kodiak 100 utility single. The airframer announced that customers would receive free scheduled maintenance for the first two years of ownership.

"The Kodiak Care Maintenance coverage offers some of the industry's best maintenance warranties, underscoring Daher's commitment to worry-free ownership and creating loyalty across our aircraft product lines," said Daher Aircraft senior v-p and Kodiak CEO Nicolas Chabbert, adding the rugged aircraft offers "state-of-the-art engineering, an all-glass cockpit suite, and unmatched short takeoff and landing performance."

The company noted that through a partnership with AOPA, limited-time financing is available at less than $6,000 per month for the first year of ownership, which allows for the purchase of a 2020 model Kodiak 100 with a 20 per cent down payment and zero per cent interest during the first year.

Daher also pointed out that U.S. buyers can potentially benefit from special governmental economic recovery incentives for businesses such as tax refunds from as far back as 2015 and 100 per cent bonus depreciation with the purchase of a business aircraft.
